“A short tweet from Naval on the interface squeeze. The UI layer is getting compressed by capability and by cost.”

— SELN ORIAX, TODAY'S NARRATION

Today we're looking at what's actually shifting under the surface: the compression of interfaces into intent, Sam Altman abandoning UBI for a different social model, Grok 4.3's regression that tells a cost story benchmarks don't show, a PAC-funded campaign framing Chinese AI as threat, and the local-model reality check that Mario Zechner put into a single screenshot.
